LOCAL GLBT ARTISTS SHINE AT GANYMEDE ARTS' FALL FEST

WASHINGTON -- An impressive array of local artists will take part in Ganymede Arts' fall festival Oct. 19-28 at the historic Church Street Theatre. The carnival will also feature theater, dance, instrumental and vocal performances.

Artists include Greg Stevens, whose work has been called creative, conceptual and industrious; Justin Andrew Schuck, a worldly portrait artist who sees "art in the mundane;" Gary Fisher, a creator of bold abstract and landscape paintings; and Glenn Fry, whose silk-screens radiate with vibrant colors, texts and images.

The show also features Charles Odom, a photographer "always looking for the next big adventure;" David Michael Conner, an artist praised for "stunning renderings" of city scenes; and Scott G. Brooks, an artist whose work has been called "twisted and offbeat."

Other exhibitors include Sabri Ben-Achour, Peter Baker, John Carroll, Matty Griffiths, Richard J. Hodges, Daniel Menzo, Brian Petro, Ron Riley, Fabian Rios Rubino and William Waybourn.

Ganymede's art curator is Kreg Kelley, whose work will also be shown. Kelley is employed by a Georgetown gallery that specializes in works by Picasso, Dali, Chagall, Rembrandt, Warhol and others.

More highlights of the fall festival:

Oct. 19 - "How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Sing the Song" by Karen Black.

Oct. 20 - New play readings: "Yellow Lentils," "The Ghosts of Summer" and more.

Oct. 21 - Gay Men's Chorus and the Lesbian and Gay Chorus of Washington.

Oct. 26 & 27 - "Great Gig in the Sky:" An eclectic evening of dance to Pink Floyd, Elvis Costello and others.
